"Smart Silence for Male Volunteers"

REPORT

17.02.2026

The National Service Scheme (NSS) Units I & II of Kings College of Engineering organized an awareness programme titled "Smart Silence" for male volunteers on 16 February 2026 at 2:00 p.m. in Pallava Hall.

The programme aimed to create awareness among male students about the importance of emotional intelligence, self-discipline, respectful communication, gender sensitivity, and responsible behaviour in society. The resource person for the programme was Mrs. S. Parvathi, Secretary, IWDPA, who delivered an insightful session emphasizing the values of empathy, mutual respect, and positive interpersonal relationships.

During her address, Mrs. Parvathi highlighted the significance of self-control, active listening, effective communication, and maintaining healthy relationships. She encouraged students to become responsible citizens by promoting respect for women, practising ethical behaviour, and contributing to a safe and inclusive environment. The session also focused on personality development, stress management, and the role of youth in fostering social harmony.

An interactive discussion enabled the 150 participants to clarify their doubts and actively engage with the resource person. The awareness programme concluded successfully with a vote of thanks, inspiring the participants to adopt positive attitudes, responsible behaviour, and effective communication skills in their personal and professional lives. The programme was successfully coordinated by Dr.M.Pugazhenth, NSS Programme Officer (Unit-I) and Mr. S. Ambalatharasu, NSS Programme Officer (Unit-II).

Outcome of the Programme

The programme enhanced the participants' understanding of emotional intelligence, respectful communication, self-discipline, and gender sensitivity. Students developed greater awareness of their social responsibilities and the importance of maintaining positive interpersonal relationships. The session motivated the volunteers to cultivate ethical values, practise empathy, and contribute towards building a respectful and harmonious society.
